

Hold On

Hold on to the good ones
When the others cut you down
Hold to the hand of kindness
Where it may be found
Hold on to the daylight
When it's slipping out of view
Tell yourself that you deserve
The things that come to you

Hold on to the magic
And the grace of the unknown
Hold on the fire
When the ground is cold as stone
Hold on to the instincts
That are wise enough to see
The twist and turns you gotta learn
To set your spirit free

Hold on
When the path before you breaks
Where you're locked out at the gates
When you're tired and you got know where to run
Hold on
For the light you cannot see
For the place you long to be
For the night you sleep and wake up to the Sun
Hold on

Hold on to the dreamer
And an open heart to trust
Hold on to the lessons
Of all you've won and lost
Hold on to the music
That you feel within in your soul
Keep a sense of wonder
Don't let your heart grow cold

Outside the storm is raging
And the sky is full of rain
The experts all seem crazy
And the lunatics seem sane
The road is full of trouble
And fate falls where it may
Take some consolation
It won't always be this way

Hold on
When the path before you breaks
Where you're locked out at the gates
When you're tired and you got know where to run
Hold on
For the light you cannot see
For the place you long to be
For the night you sleep and wake up to the Sun
Hold on

Don't let it leave you
You've still got time
You've still got time

Hold on
When the path before you breaks
Where you're locked out at the gates
When you're tired and you got know where to run
Hold on
For the light you cannot see
For the place you long to be
For the night you sleep and wake up to the Sun
Hold on
