

Leaving London

Now there's rust on the razor
I've done my time I've paid my debt
Maybe I'm leaving to remember
Maybe I'm leaving to forget

Somewhere I got lost in the traffic
Bogged down in someone else's war
Somehow this place just lost it's magic
I don't believe it anymore

Well I'm leaving London
With a pounding in my chest
You don't know you've got wings
Til you put them to test

I thought my luck would last forever
How could that star ever burn out
So many things I took for granted
I gotta learn to live without

I did my best I fought the good fight
But there's some battles you can't win
Here in the shadow of the street light
Feels like my skin is getting thin

The futures not the way I planned it
The present's not the way it seems
You can spend a lifetime waiting
Playing catch up with your dreams

All those days piled up behind me
One day I stopped counting the years
By the time the morning finds me
I'll be a world away from here

Well I'm leaving London
With a pounding in my chest
You don't know you've got wings
Til you put them to test

Yes you know I gotta go
I can't stay here

So I'm Leaving London
With a pounding in my chest
You don't know you've got wings
Til you put them to test
